- Product designs allowing easy adaptation and reconfiguration, enabling change to suit the applicable work environment thereby avoiding product obsolescence.

- Products that ship flat-packed and ready-to-assemble, maximizing shipping efficiency and minimizing fossil fuel consumption.
- Using composite wood products made with 100% recovered and recycled wood fibers. Only supporting raw material suppliers that adopt a "No new trees harvested" policy, meaning that all wood chips must come from sawmills, planing mills and other sources where the chips are a waste by-product of primary products.
- Utilizing low formaldehyde content composite wood that meets CARB* guidelines.
- Using recycled paper and water-based amino resins in the lamination and treatment processes.
- Packaging sized to fit finished products tightly, reducing unnecessary material.
- Designing products that can be either recycled or reused at the end of the product life.
